RAF BLASTS RUHR AREA

British Air Offensive Reaches New Peak on German Western Front.

BERLIN—(U.P.)—Official Nazi reports claimed today that six Russian divisions have been "annihilated" and that a "large number" of Soviet divisions are trapped and in danger of being crushed in the area north of Vitebsk.

(By United Press)

The Nazi offensive against Russia appeared today to have lost some of its blitz and on the western front Germany faced a crackling British air attack that raged without interruption through the night and into the daylight hours.

There was no indication in communiques from Berlin and Moscow of any substantial progress during the last 24 hours toward the major German objectives of Kiev, Leningrad and Moscow.

The Russian communique indicated that there has been little change in the fighting front in the last few days. Berlin offered no new specific claims beyond an assertion that encircled Russian armies are being "annihilated according to plan."

In the west the Germans faced a Royal Air Force offensive that seemed to be at a new peak, possibly co-ordinated with the rising tide of the British V-for-victory propaganda being spread throughout the occupied lands of Europe.

The British air attack resumed last night with a rush

S. army are shown top right beside the "Hudson" type bomber they used to accompany the Air-tour. Victor Everson of Cleveland piloted the airplane shown in the bottom right photo which nosed over while landing. Neither Everson nor his two passengers were injured.

10,000 On Hand As 76 Planes Arrive Here On Two Air Tours

An estimated crowd of 10,000 watched Mansfield bask in the spotlight of state-wide aviation attention yesterday as 76 airplanes from the Dawn Patrol and the Junior Association of Commerce's All-Ohio Air-tour landed, performed and departed all within eight hours.

The big crowd started arriving early in the morning. A steady stream of cars slowed traffic to the airport over State Route 13 and at the airfield nearly all available parking space was jammed with autos before noon.

For hours they scanned the skies "spotting" the planes as they came into view after flights from Lima. The "early bird" planes, those of the Dawn Patrol, arrived shortly after 8 a. m. Those in the JAC air tour began arriving at about 11:15.

The spectators, besides being interested onlookers as the planes landed and were assigned places in a long line-up of aircraft, heard talks on aviation and saw a demonstration of the air mail pick-up system, one that is expected to be started at the Mansfield port early next spring.

A military attraction was provided when an army bomber arrived with officers from Columbus airport.

Only one accident marred the occasion. A plane piloted by Victor Everson nosed over in landing. Everson and his two passengers, William Ertell and LeRoy Naylon, were from Cleveland. Airport officials said the plane apparently stalled 15

PASADENA, Cal.—(INS)—Safe at the home of her parents, 12-year-old Margaret Ann Vail today told of 11 hours of terror in which she claimed she was held prisoner in a storm drain by Alfred Henry McCurdy, 14.

The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McCurdy of Pasadena, was held by juvenile authorities on suspicion of kidnaping and criminal assault.

Margaret was found wandering aimlessly in the darkness of the storm drain yesterday after 30 police officers had searched miles of twisting underground passageways.

McCurdy, found only a short distance from the girl, confessed he had molested her, police said.

Prominent Bolivians Jailed As Police Smash Nazi Plot

BULLETIN

BUENOS AIRES — (INS) — In stinging editorials, virtually the entire Latin-American press today expressed extreme indignation on learning of the alleged Nazi conspiracy in Bolivia to overthrow the Bolivian government and called on their own governments for strong measures to prevent similar situations.

(By Associated Press)

LA PAZ, Bolivia—A number of prominent Bolivians, including former Finance Minister Victor Paz Estenssoro, were under arrest today in connection with an alleged Nazi plot which police said had been smashed by the timely action of President Enrique Penaranda, advocate of close co-operation with the United States.

Ernst Wendler, German minister, was ordered expelled from the country. President Penaranda said he had documentary proof that the minister had attempted to meddle in Bolivia's domestic affairs.

TRUCKS PICK UP POTS AND PANS

Mansfield Starts Donating Old Aluminum; 2nd Ward Collection Tomorrow.

Mansfield and Richland county families searched attics and pantries today for old aluminum pots and pans as the campaign for aluminum for the national defense program went into high gear throughout the state and nation.

A few Richland county communities "jumped the gun" and started their drive for aluminum last week, contributing to the rapidly growing heap of "ammunition" under Hitler's effigy at the west side of Central park.

Mansfield's campaign officially got under way at 8:30 a. m. today when a sound truck traveled through the First ward to remind housewives that their old aluminum kitchen utensils are needed by Uncle Sam.

Trucks with crews of Boy Scouts made the rounds in the First ward today to collect the utensils. Any contributors who were overlooked, however, will get a chance to contribute by calling the American Legion or Volunteers of America which will send trucks to pick up

URGES PURCHASE OF WINTER COAL

Governor Asks Residents To Buy Now and Clear Railroads.

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — Governor Bricker today urged Ohio residents to buy their winter coal supply now in order to help clear the railroads for other defense services.

The governor's statement was prompted by a letter from Luther Harr, of the bituminous coal consumers' council, Washington, who wrote the governor that "if increased demands on the railroads continue, a car shortage may be expected in the week ending Sept. 13."

"The summer buying and storing of bituminous coal is a vital factor in the nation's defense pattern and I urge Ohioans to do their coal buying now and thus help clear the railroads for other services," Bricker said.

British Claim "V" Army Of Millions Ready In Europe

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Claiming a "V" army of millions mobilized throughout German-occupied countries in a whistling, tapping, sign-painting campaign aimed at Nazi nerves, British authorities advised the unseen victory legion today to wait patiently, ready for the time to strike.

"Colonel Britton," the man behind the BBC mike which dinned the victory mobilization broadcast moral support for the subjected peoples of Europe. in 17 European languages throughout Sunday, appealed for more V's in sound and sign across the continent and declared:

"We in Britain are with you. Now we wait quietly and patiently until the time comes."

V DRIVE FOR U. S., TOO

NEW YORK — (INS) — The "V for victory" slogan of the British will be spread throughout the United States in the form of posters, windshield stickers, window cards, and lapel pins, officials of Bundles for Britain announced today.

Purpose of the American campaign, it was explained, is to make U. S. citizens conscious of the British drive and to attract

The Daily Herald threw some light on the identity of "Colonel Britton" by reporting that he is an actual British army colonel whose name is Britton — "although it may not be spelled quite that way."

Twenty-four hours after he started his Sunday morning mobilization broadcasts by thumping the Morse code V, three dots and

AAA CONCESSION

Lifts Wheat Penalty on Pledge To Underseed '42 Crop.

WASHINGTON— (INS) —In another move to satisfy complaints against penalties of 49 cents per bushel on excess wheat, the agriculture department today announced that farmers will be allowed to market the overproduction penalty-free this year if they underseed next year's allotments when they plant in the fall.

The department said an amendment to the AAA act, approved May 26, permits farmers who store excess wheat to take out of storage and market without penalty excess wheat equal to the amount they reduce next year's seedings below allotments.

County AAA committees, the department said, will release a corresponding amount of 1941 excess wheat when seedings are completed and a determination is made of reductions under allotments.

FDR Puts Plea Up to Congress And All of U. S.

Asserts Release of Guardsmen, Drafted Men Would Be 'Tragic Error' And Says 'I Know Danger's Greater Now Than a Year Ago.'

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state, said today that the United States had information that Germany was planning new steps of aggression against remaining independent countries in Europe. His comment aroused speculation, on the possibility that he meant that Spain and Portugal might be due for attacks.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Urging congress to pass pending legislation extending the service of draftees, national guardsmen and reservists, President Roosevelt today called on the legislators to "acknowledge" the state of a national emergency because the international situation is now "far more grave than a year ago" when the draft law was enacted.

The chief executive, in a special message, informed both houses that it "would be a tragic error" to curtail the training of selectees and guardsmen at the conclusion of the twelve months.

"Today it is imperative that I should officially report to the congress," asserted the president, "what the congress undoubtedly knows: that the international situation is not less grave but is far more grave than it was a year ago.

"It is so grave, in my opinion, and in the opinion of all who are conversant with the facts, that the army should be maintained in effective strength and without diminution of its effective numbers in a complete state of readiness. Small as it is in comparison with other armies, it should not suffer any form of disorganization or disintegration."

Simultaneously, Mr. Roosevelt promised that selectees and guardsmen who have reached the age of 28 would be transferred from active service to reserve status as rapidly as possible.

Tracing the time table conquests of Germany, which he declared successively brought the issue of Nazi domination closer to this hemisphere, the president said the danger to the United States' safety is much greater today than it was a year ago when congress put a 12-month limit on training.

"I do believe—I know—that the danger today is infinitely greater," he said. "I do believe—I know—that in all truth we are in the midst of a national emergency.

"I am not asking the congress for specific language in a specific bill. But I can saw frankly that I hope the congress will acknowledge this national emergency

Ickes Takes Another Step on Road to Gas Rationing.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Motorists in 16 eastern states today face drastic rationing of gasoline unless they voluntarily reduce consumption of the motor fuel by 33⅓ per cent.

Following his appeal for reduced consumption, Petroleum Coordinator Harold L. Ickes telegraphed orders to the 19 major oil companies of the east asking for weekly reports of their gasoline sales "until further notice," to enable him to keep a check on the results of the voluntary conservation.

Ickes warned that the one-third reduction of gas in the eastern states is imperative if drastic rationing of the fuel is to be avoided.

Pinball Machines Ordered Removed From Liquor Spots

Orders have been given for the removal of all pinball machines from Mansfield grills and restaurants serving liquor, Police Chief Meade K. Bates announced today.

Bates said that he had been asked by the state liquor board to inform tavern proprietors and other liquor license holders that their licenses are liable to revocation if they continue to maintain the machines.

The state board bases its request on a recent supreme court order holding the bagetelle machines as "gambling devices," according to the police chief.

Novelty companies, distributors of the pinball machines have already returned dozens from drinking places and are faced with a storage problem. The companies were not contacted by police but picked up the marble games upon the request of tavern owners.

Pinball machines in other places of business have not been ordered removed, however. Bates said that he was merely acting in the behalf of the state liquor board in informing liquor permit holders of their liability. He said that no local enforcement "crusade" was planned.

The chief also stated that no request had been made by the liquor board for the removal of punchboards, baseball lotteries or similar boards of chance.

Death Stays Out Of Traffic In County; 15 Killed In Ohio

After chalking up five traffic fatalities in 12 days, Richland county escaped without a major traffic mishap over the week-end, while at least 15 deaths were attributed to highway accidents in Ohio.

In a freak accident just east of Galion Sunday afternoon, Service-Safety Director Jay F. Nichols of Galion and Mrs. Nichols narrowly escaped death as the rear end of their car was sheared off by an Erie freight train at the Cummings crossing.

They were en route to an Eagle lodge picnic at Greter's lake. Nichols did not see the westbound train until the car was on the tracks, he told authorities. He said he pushed hard on the accelerator, causing the car to leap ahead, probably saving the couple from death, or serious injury.

The locomotive tore the rear seat of the car from the front seat. Both Nichols and his wife were treated by a Galion physician for cuts and bruises.

Richard Miller, 153 Poplar street, escaped injury early Sunday when the car he was driving went off U. S. route 42 and overturned

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Speaking For Myself..

I HAVE spent a good deal of time in the Broadway and East Side glamor spots of recent evenings, being disillusioned about Europeans. There used to be a phrase, "Old World," which was very popular, and was employed to distinguish ancient, or European manners from those which were American, or gauche.

Dorothy Kilgallen

It implied that citizens of the young United States lacked the elaborate routines of courtesy and evidences of breeding which were common to persons who lived in England, Germany, Italy and France, because Americans spent their hurried lives making money and building extra bathrooms, and had no leisure left in which to vegetate in "culture."

It was impressed upon us by the Europeans, and accepted by those at home, that Americans naturally did not have the nice manners of those residing in England, Germany, Italy and France, just as they did not have nice titles like Count, Viscount, Baron and Duke.

Well, of late we have had the privilege of observing a large flock of Europeans who are "refugees" from the war-torn countries of their birth to the expensive night clubs of Manhattan.

They either came well provided with currency or loaded with emeralds which they have been sending out to the pawnbroker at an alarming rate, for I observe that they shop in the most expensive stores, reside at the highest-priced hotels, drink champagne with luncheon at 21, entertain parties of 12 or 20 in night clubs where scrambled eggs are $2.50 a plate, and commute to Hollywood and Mexico City with no more concern for the cost of transportation than you use dropping a nickel into a subway turnstile.

But these things do not comprise my complaint, if any, about these new faces from the "Old World."

My complaint is a strictly Broadway complaint. I would make it against any group which was guilty, whether it hailed from Chicago, Wichita or Laramie, Wyo., but I make it with some surprise against the Europeans because of their reputation for fine and fancy manners.

The complaint is this: They are rude to entertainers. Never mind that they are also rude to waiters, bus boys, taxi drivers and hat check girls—that is the subject for another day's sermon.

I am concerned at the moment with the rudeness I have observed people from England, Germany, Italy and France displaying toward entertainers (of all nationalities) who perform on night club floors in New York.

They talk while singers are singing. They talk loudly and laugh at their own jokes while comedians are working who have been paid a large sum by the night club proprietors to make all the customers laugh; they call loudly for waiters and rattle cups and glasses and silverware, and are impervious to the shushings of those who want to listen to what they have paid to hear.

Now, I am sure this cannot be because the entertainment on and around Broadway is inferior to what the people from England, Germany and France and Italy are accustomed to. I have attended night clubs in Europe from Ciro's in London to the Cafe Femina in Athens to the Bagatelle in Paris, and I can report that, with the exception of occasions when performers from the United States are imported, the entertainment in European cafes is several notches below the standards set by even second-grade niteries here.

Nor do I believe that there is any intention on the part of these refugees from lands of tradition to heckle, annoy and spoil the performances of entertainers here simply because they are Americans.

I am sure this is not so, because I have watched them behave quite as rudely to Milli Monto at the Rainbow Room as to Hildegarde at the Savoy-Plaza; I have noticed that they talked as loudly during the impressions of the British by John Buckmaster at Fefe's Monte Carlo (where they were particularly prevalent this season) as during those of the native Dean Murphy at the Waldorf-Astoria.

I am not suggesting that if the refugees don't like it on Broadway they go back where they came from; I am merely inviting them to give the performer a break—or, if "break" is a vulgar word, to hush up while the show is on.

4,000 GET PAY BOOST, STRIKE RUMORS ENDED

White Motor Employes Given Boost After Threat at Defense Orders.

CLEVELAND—(AP)— More than 4,000 employes of the White Motor Co., received pay increases today to end talk of a strike that would have tied up $70,000,000 in vital army orders.

Members of the CIO United Automobile Workers ratified a pact providing for a seven-cent-an-hour boost. The old minimum was 75 cents and the average $1.02.

The union, which had demanded 10 cents, said the raises would affect 4,300 workers.

A strike first called for July 9 was postponed pending negotiations in Washington directed by the Department of Labor's conciliation service. The present agreement was reached in Capital parleys before being approved by the membership.

CIO unionists at the Air Associates, incorporated, in Bendix, N. J., looked to President Roosevelt today to halt their wage and bargaining dispute with the management by taking the plant over.

The aircraft division of the United Auto Workers of America asked him to do so in a letter yesterday "until such time as the company decides to cooperate with national defense and to comply with the law of the United States of America." The letter contended that the company paid the "lowest wages in the aircraft industry" and that union negotiating committee had been unable to get a hearing from the management.

F. Leroy Hill, company president, said at no time since the union won a bargaining representation election July 1 had the company "refused to recognize or negotiate with the union."

A state supreme court justice at Olean, N. Y., issued an injunction restraining CIO pickets from interfering with operation of the U. S. Gypsum company plant at Oakfield, N. Y. The plant hires 500. It is one of 14 gypsum factories where CIO's gypsum organizing committee called strikes June 26 to support demands for a 10 per cent increase in existing wage rates which range from 62½ to 95 cents an hour.

CIO's United Mine Workers union decided to resume work today at the Van Lear, Ky., mine of the Consolidated Coal company, closed Thursday when 800 men walked out. They contended the management was dismissing veteran employes and hiring new men. The management denied it hired any new men and explained it had dropped some employes only because production was declining.

Five little orphaned skunks have found a champion in Ann Shawber, 12, of 491 Marion avenue. The quintet was discovered on the Shawber farm, off the Millsborough road, after the mother skunk had been killed. Ann took a liking to the orphans and plays with them the same as she would kittens. The other evening at home she exploded a bombshell with her calm announcement that she had brought the skunks home in a box, due to threats of rain, and that they were in a box in the automobile. Needless to say the box was hurriedly removed from the car and put in a safe place until the occupants could be transported back to the farm. So far no casualties have been reported.

HOODED GUNMAN GETS CASH HERE

Man With Cloth Over Head Menaces Proprietress of Restaurant.

Mansfield police today were seeking a black-hooded bandit who held up an East side cafe owner early this morning and escaped with money from the cash register.

Marguerite Dailey, proprietress of Margaret's Inn, 233 Park avenue east, reported that a man "wearing a black cloth over his head and shoulders" had walked into her place at about 3:13 a. m. and demanded money.

Mrs. Dailey said that the robber carried a nickle-plated gun with which he covered her while opening the cash register and taking out several $1 bills and 50-cent pieeces. She told police she could not estimate the loss.

Although the cloth covered his head entirely, the inn proprietress said that it was obviously thin enough for the man to see through.

After taking the money from the register, the man backed toward the door and ran into the street.

LEW FIELDS, FAMOUS COMEDIAN, SUCCUMBS AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

(By Associated Press)

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif.—Lew Fields, half of the famous vaudeville comedy team of Weber and Fields, is dead.

His life-time partner, Joe Weber, at his bedside commented sadly:

"It's like losing my right arm. We've grown up together. He was everything to me."

Fields, 74, became ill Thursday and died yesterday. The girl-shows which he and Weber staged and starred in often featured noted players of the day.

Lillian Russell, David Warfield, Dewolf Hopper, Fay Templeton and Willie Collier were among the stage figures who appeared in Weber-Fields comedies.

Fields was born Lewis Maurice Fields. He and Weber began their famous comedy routine in New York in 1876 when they were little boys. Fields was only nine.

Their first appearances together were in juvenile Dutch sketches at small variety theaters. In 1885, they formed their own company.

In 1896, they became proprietors of the famous Weber and Fields Music Hall in New York which, for years, was one of the gay spots of Broadway.

Throughout the years, between coast to coast, they produced and starred in almost a show a year.

Some of the biggest hits during the late '20s included "Hit the Deck," "A Connecticut Yankee," "Present Arms," and "Hello Daddy."

Their last appearance together in makeup was in the motion picture "Life of Lillian Russell" a year ago.

Restaurant Tips Run to Sizeable Sum In a Year

CHICAGO—(INS)—Mr. and Mrs. America leave about $200,000,000 a year behind them in tips when they go dining out, according to the estimate of Miss Grace E Smith, president of the National Restaurant association.

Miss Smith said that despite efforts of some restaurateurs to abolish the practice of tipping, it seems to be as popular as ever.

She stated that the $200,000,000 figure was arrived at by considering the $2,185,000,600 worth of meals served by restaurants last year, eliminating cafeterias and certain other restaurants that have a "no-tip" rule and estimating the range of tips on other meals as from 10 to 30 per cent of the price.

"There's nothing restauranteurs can do about the situation," she declared, "because our guests feel that tipping is a personal matter between themselves and those who serve their meals. As a consequence, our best policy as operators is to remain on the sidelines."

"Gnats," Say Fire Lads Disgustedly Following Alarm

CLEVELAND—(AP)—"The Terminal tower is on fire!" came a shout over the fire department telephone. "Smoke is pouring out of the top floor."

Two trucks, a rescue squad and three engine companies clanged through busy public square and a squad of firemen dashed into the skyscraper. The men sped to the 42nd floor in elevators and then crawled up to the 52nd level.

Fifteen minutes later the firemen quietly returned to the street.

"Gnats," said Battalion Chief Charles Smith, "millions of them whirling and swirling around 'til they look like smoke."

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

It's not often you see a character come to life and grow before your eyes as you do in this exceptionally fine movie story of a still-living American hero.

If Alvin C. York has stuck vaguely in your memory as just a fellow from the 1918 World war who cleaned out a mess of Germans and machine guns single-handed, and got a lot of medals and acclaim for so doing, this picture will give background and meaning to the memory.

It will take you back to Tennessee to York's home valley, high and remote in the Cumberland mountains, untouched by Europe's war even in 1916 when America was being drawn closer to the brink. It will show you elemental, simple people.

York is a hillside farmer, with a yen for rich bottomland. He's a steady, hard worker, except when he seeks respite in corn likker and becomes a "heller." His mother (Wycherly) understands, and hopes he'll get religion. Pastor Pile (Brennan) tries talking him into it, but York figures religion comes of itself or not at all.

It's love—when he sees Gracie Williams (Leslie)—that sets him harder to work for that bottomland. When he loses it, he is set to kill and is stayed by a miracle. Religion comes—and it's a beautiful piece of theater, that sequence.

There follows a detailed and spectacular re-creation of the amazing York exploit in France, as incredible today as then except that it has been verified and is a matter of record. Afterward, heaped with honors and opportunities to commercialize his fame, he goes back home. He had done only what he had to do, and it wasn't a thing to take money for.

There is so much in "Sergeant York" that is fine that perhaps it can be be summed up in the matter of running time: more than two hours long, it seems shorter than most run-of-the-mill movies. Cooper gives his most convincing performance, 16-year-old Miss Leslie is astonishingly good, and Brennan delivers as usual. Miss Wycherly's "Ma" is a fascinating, superbly done character.

He made it the fourth time—after the crew held up the train long enough for him to buy a ticket.

URGES CONGRESS DECLARATION OF FULL EMERGENCY

President Stresses Greater Danger, Says Releasing Men Would Be Tragic.

either for a specific period or until revocation by the congress or the president.

Declaration by congress of a state of national emergency would have the effect of giving President Roosevelt a full vote of confidence for all actions he has taken to date under the emergency he declared by proclamation.

Further, such a congressional declaration would enable the president to retain selectees, guardsmen and reserve officers in training for the period of emergency and give him authority to send them anywhere in the world he deemed it necessary in the interest of national defense.

The president warned solemnly that "we would be taking a grave national risk unless the congress were to make it possible for us to maintain our present full effective strength and during the coming year give training to as many additional Americans as we can."

The chief executive furthermore told the legislative branch that the United States has a definite responsibility to every other country in the western hemisphere — which responsibility would be dissolved if the army was to be weakened by inadequate training.

"To weaken our army at this particular time would be, in my judgment, an act of bad faith toward our neighbors," he said.

Mr. Roosevelt recognized the personal sacrifices which the many thousands of selectees, guardsmen and reserves are making, but he expressed confidence that the men in the ranks of the army "realize far better than does the general public the disastrous effect" of permitting the army "to melt away."

He said it was not surprising that millions of patriotic Americans find it difficult to disrupt their normal lives but he noted that "It is hard for most of us to bring events many thousands of miles away into focus with our readily-accepted and normal democratic ways of living."

"That is why I must refer again to the sequence of conquests — German conquests or attacks — which have continued uninterruptedly through several years all the way from the coup against Austria to the present campaign against Russia," the president continued.

The president's message was sent to Capitol Hill at noon and later was to be broadcast to the nation and the world.

Instead of delivering the message personally to congress, the chief executive arranged to make transcription of it for radio broadcast in his study at 11 a. m., an hour before its presentation to the legislators.

All the major radio chains were notified to be on hand for the recording, as were newsreel cameramen for special recordings for presentation on the motion picture screens throughout the country.

The radio companies—National Broadcasting, Columbia and Mutual—rearranged their schedules to broadcast the special message as soon as possible after its presentation to congress.

There has been evidence of wide dissention in congress on the proposals to keep draftees in service "for the duration." Party lines are split, and a bitter fight is foreseen, even in the face of the president's message.

Landon Supports Draft Extension Plan

TOPEKA, Kans.—(U.P.)—Alf M. Landon, 1936 Republican presidential candidate, today gave his "reluctant support" to the proposed retention of selective service soldiers and national guardsmen.

In a radio address yesterday, he accused the administration of "hoodwinking" the people and said that continuation of the draftees and guardsmen in service was necessary because "the president has the country out on the limb."

"Today, as a nation, we are wide open," he said. "Under the provocative words and bellicose policies and acts of the president and his cabinet, we have gone too far not to be armed to the teeth."

The extension request was a "gross breach of the promises that this administration made the country and the draftees" but this time the emergency is real, Landon said, and the "American people will have to take it on the chin."

90-Year-Old Man Has Never Been Ill In His Life

NORFOLK, Neb.—(INS)—Charles F. Wilde of Norfolk, Neb., who recently celebrated his 90th birthday has the unusual record of not having sickness necessitating a physician a single day of his life.

Wilde attributes his good health to his regular and moderate habits.

"I always thought more of my health than anything else," he commented. "I have never been drunk because I have seen how drunkards suffer. I never believe in overdoing anything, and that goes for smoking."

An extensive reader, he reads without the aid of glasses. When he was 68 years old he purchased a pair but found he could see and read better without them.

The first book printed in the western hemisphere was a Mexican volume.

he resigned in a disagreement over the exchange rate of the peso and dollar, was described by police as head of "the nationalist revoluntiory movement." That organization was dissolved automatically with proclamation of a state of siege.

The country still was under a state of siege, but the capital and provinces were reported quiet.

Defense Minister Gen. Miguel Candia arrived at Cochabamba, a farm center where a large German settlement is situated, to lead further investigations there.

Four newspapers, two of which were mentioned in Washington's Axis blacklist, were suspended by the government, and three newspapermen were among those arrested.

A government source charged Wendler "provided the channel of communications between a Bolivian military man now in Germany and young army officers here who favor a totalitarian form of government."

Berlin Silent on Bolivian Action

BERLIN—(INS)—No official comment was forthcoming today concerning the alleged German plot to overthrow the Bolivian government and it was indicated that nothing would be said pending clarification of the situation.

The whole affair, however, was characterized as "fantastic and based on ridiculous combinations," and it was expected that swift retaliation would be taken against the Bolivian government.

ASUNCION, Paraguay —(AP)— Hans Carl Paul Buesing, German minister to Paraguay, died here last night.

BAD WEATHER BOGS GERMAN WAR MACHINE

Report Little Progress Made Toward Key Objectives In Past 24 Hours.

after several days of less favorable weather had forced a reduction in the large scale operations which have been in progress since about two weeks before the start of the Nazi attack on Russia.

Throughout the night large squadrons of British bombers pounded at the Ruhr area, centering again on the frequently blitzed city of Cologne. Other squadrons attacked Rotterdam and new defenses along the French coast which the Nazis have been observed constructing.

On the English side of the channel observers saw the air virtually filled with planes. Fresh squadrons roared over to attack as returning British planes hummed back for fresh loads of bombs and ammunition. There was no sign of German fighter opposition and it appeared that the British planes were flying deep into France to carry home their attack on secondary defenses and, presumably, air bases, communications lines and other military objectives.

Nor was the French front the only one where the RAF was engaged. Rome admitted that the British had again attacked Naples, embarkation point for supplies and men for North Africa. The Italians said 15 persons were killed and 24 wounded in the new Naples attack. An RAF attack on Benghazi, important Libyan base, also was admitted.

The scanty news from the Russo-German fighting front indicated that the stiffness of Soviet opposition, the length of German communications lines and, possibly, bad weather had slowed down Nazi operations.

German sources explained that the "vast Russian spaces and the masses of troops involved inevitably extend the time of operations."

The high command then added that encircling annihilation operations were in progress and that Rumanian and Finnish troops were advancing on the Bessarabian and far northern fronts.

The Russians said that the fifth week of war started with the Germans still hammering toward Leningrad, Kiev, Moscow and Odessa but indicated that the panzers had scored only slight advances, if any. Guerrilla warfare behind the front, said Moscow, is increasingly hampering the Germans.

At the same time Josef Stalin continued to concentrate Russian powers more tightly in his hands and in the five-man high defense directorate which was established to prosecute the war. Stalin himself took over the defense commissariat, presumably because Marshal Semyon Timoshenko now is engaged in the field directing defense of the central front.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill effected a mild shake-up in his cabinet, replacing Alfred Duff Cooper in the ministry of information with Brendan Bracken, his secretary.

Brendan Bracken, Churchill's private secretary, tall, red haired, spectacled newspaper publisher, was named to succeed Duff Cooper.

Editorials in newspapers showed the general view of the shake-up, in which several minor officers were shifted.

"It is just another reshuffle of a too-familiar kind," said the independent conservative Daily Mail, chief newspaper of the Rothermere chain.

Second Shake-up Fails To Satisfy British

LONDON—(U.P.)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill's second cabinet shake-up in three weeks failed to satisfy critics of the government today. They demanded that he weed out weaker members and establish ministries for production and civil defense.

Churchill announced at midnight that Alfred Duff Cooper, third minister of information since the war started, had been named Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster and assigned to the Far East to plan co-ordination of civil and military activities in behalf of the war cabinet.

a dash, on a big drum he declared the Nazis bewildered and the V army swelling "beyond all expectations."

Acts of sabotage were reported from Czecho-Slovakia, where the British said V-symbols by the thousands were scrawled on walls and fences.

Similar reports told of 6,000 V-case prosecutions by German authorities in Paris, and of Nazi-baiting throughout occupied France, Belgium and the Netherlands by V-signs daubed on German official cars, on buildings, in front of hotels and in the streets; drummed in Morse code, tapped on doors and whistled in the darkness.

The British, themselves, are having a field day with the V's — chalking them by thousands in public places from the doors of east-end slums to the Trafalgar-square lions. Bakers sold V-shaped rolls. Women turned hat feathers into V's. Searchlights and locomotive whistles flashed and tooted Morse V's.

A report from Johannesburg said the V-campaign had swept the Union of South Africa, where the V-shaped finger salute seemed on the way to supersede the familiar "thumbs up."

10,000 On Hand As 76 Planes Arrive Here On Two Air Tours

feet above the ground and nosed over. No one was injured. Everson sold the plane on the spot to Charles Bookwalter of Giesner avenue for junk.

James G. Ray, vice-president in charge of operations of the All-American Aviation corporation, who was at the airfield recognized the plane as one he tested 12 years ago when he was a test pilot for the Pitcain Airplane company.

Forty planes of the Dawn Patrol, an organization of the Airplane Owners' and Pilots' association, started the day's program when they landed there for breakfast. Each week the Dawn Patrol breakfasts at a different Ohio airport after coming from all over Ohio.

Soon after the 40 Dawn Patrol planes had cleared the ground, 36 planes from the JAC tour began to arrive from Lima, bringing with them Richard Burnham of the Mansfield JAC, and C. M. Crafton, service-safety director, who represented the Mansfield city officials in the absence of Mayor W. J. Locke.

The pilots were taken to Westinghouse cafeteria as they landed for dinner. After the meal was served and Crafton welcomed the flyers to Mansfield, the pilots returned to the airport.

Col. Kress Muhlenberg and Major J. L. Zimmerman addressed the audience. The army flying officers told the need of recruits for army air corps and Col. Muhlenberg predicted that "with an adequate air force and navy, Hitler could be kept on his side of the Atlantic ocean."

After the talks, representatives of the All-American Aviation corporation set up equipment on the field for a demonstration in air mail pick-up service.

Vice President Ray demonstrated how mail pouches are gathered and left without landing. He piloted his red monoplane over the poles catching a sack from the ground with a hook attached to a rope in the plane.

Ray explained that Mansfield is on a proposed route for this type of service. He said the corporation's appeal for mail contracts is in the hands of the Civil Aeronautics commission now and will be acted upon in October. If accepted by the commission, the plan will go into operation probably next May, he said.

This morning Edwin Balyeat, chairman of the air transportation committee of the JAC, announced a meeting Thursday of representatives from all Mansfield civic organizations. Plans for improvement of the airport will be presented at the meeting, he said.

Two sets of construction plans were drawn. One calls for the use of W. P. A. labor and the other for the use of a private contractor. They were drawn by Boyd W. Wierman, former state highway engineer here.

Warns Farmers To Guard Against Summer Insects

ITHACA, N. Y. — (INS) — Many kinds of insects, which have no regard for national defense and look ahead only to their next meal, will trouble vegetable crops this summer, and growers were urged today to prepare for them, by Prof. R. W. Leiby of the entomology department at Cornell university.

The Mexican bean beetle, which attacks garden snap beans, has become worse each year, and only a dry spell last summer saved bean growers from having the leaves stripped from their plants, he said.

The other insects include the European corn borer, on sweet corn, which increased its population five times over the previous summer in Lake Ontario counties last summer; flea beetles on cabbage and young tomato plants, vine borers on squash, ear worms on corn, and squash bugs, Dr. Leiby stated.

Reduction In CCC Enrollment

YOUNG MEN are leaving the Civilian Conservation Corps at such a rate that in another year this particular federal relief project may be just a memory. Members of the corps are demonstrating that they would rather be working on regular jobs or be in some branch of the armed service than connected with the CCC.

When congress appropriated more money for non-defense spending in the fiscal year 1942 instead of less, disregarding Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau's recommendation that these appropriations be cut a billion dollars, it appears to have disregarded facts as well as the interests of the taxpayers. The CCC was among the agencies for which the treasury head recommended big cuts.

How right Mr. Morgenthau was is indicated in a report of the director of the CCC for May. He discloses that 10,225 men left the camps in that month, the largest monthly exodus in the history of the CCC. Private jobs were accepted by 9,268 and the others enlisted. The history of the CCC seems to be a duplication of that of the WPA, which recently has been seeking "labor" in some sections.

Free Parking Lots Needed

WHEN action was taken, almost a year ago, to install parking meters on Mansfield's downtown streets, to eliminate overtime parking and reduce traffic congestion, it was understood as the further intention of the city administration to act quickly in providing one or more free parking lots.

This was talked about for several months, after which nothing more was heard of it, and, as nearly as can be learned, the matter is now tied up by city council failing to act in appropriating money from the meter fund to pay parking lot rental.

The advantage of getting as many cars as possible off of streets and into parking lots can scarcely be overestimated and the all-day parking now common on residence streets just outside of restricted areas justifies the numerous complaints being made by residents of those streets.

Explanation is that many motorists who are employed in stores and offices, and who had been accustomed to all-day parking in what is now metered space, leave their cars a little further out—because the free parking lots which had been promised have not yet been made available.

In view of the fact that the entire revenue from parking meters is intended for use in bettering traffic conditions in general, it seems pertinent to ask responsible officials why there has been such a long delay in providing at least one free city parking lot. There is need for several, located within convenient walking distance from the central business district.

No Buyers For Hollywood Palaces

ALL of the elephants are not in zoos, or traveling with circuses. Some of the most notable "white elephants" in the country are those ostentatious homes which served as the "self expression" of wealthy folks during the era of easily-acquired riches — but which now find no buyers at more than a few cents on the dollar of cost.

Even glamorous Hollywood is noting this situation and the palaces that have been erected within the past couple of decades to express the "individuality" of various moguls of movieland have become drugs on the real estate market—some going for less than the cost of the land on which they stand.

It is not only Hollywood, however, in which such conditions are found, as mansion-like homes in other sections of the country have presented similar problems to be solved by heirs of original owners, who have become tax-burdened by properties for which there is no market.

Observation indicates that homes running from $50,000 to $1,000,000 in cost had best be regarded as designed to meet the peculiar requirements of the individuals, or families, who build them — with practical assurance of heavy losses when they are disposed of, or torn down.

As the ability is reached to own a home in these higher price brackets it appears that ideas of what constitutes a desirable home vary so greatly that each prospective owner prefers to carry through his own building plans instead of buying a property that carries out the ideas of someone else.

Fortunately this condition does not apply to residential property in the lower price range and less expensive homes are ordinarily salable at somewhere near their cost—with reasonable allowance for depreciation and the privilege of occupancy.

Each Doing Its Part

SOME folks on both sides of the border seem bent on stirring up trouble between the United States and Canada. It is about military duty. Our people complain because Canada hasn't adopted military conscription as we have. Canadians complain that we don't send troops abroad as they do.

So far both methods, in the two countries, seem to have worked rather well. Canada has raised about as many troops as it could train and arm, now said to be more than 300,000, and has sent large expeditionary forces to Britain and elsewhere. We are producing a trained army of more than a million, which will be expanded to two or three times that size. We have now sent some troops to help hold Iceland, and will soon be sending more elsewhere for garrison duty. Canada will conscript whenever it seems necessary. Meanwhile there seems to be no reason for unpleasant argument on either side.

THE HEADLESS HORSEMAN

Jap 'Fuehrer' Not Yet Revealed

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

JUST who's to be Japan's Hitler isn't quite clear to our state department yet. Even as pro-Axis as it has been for some time, Nippon hasn't been, hitherto, quite as totalitarian as Europe's dictatorially ruled countries.

Now, however, it rapidly is becoming so. But it still hasn't an outstanding single personality, like Adolf in Germany, Commissar Stalin in Russia, Duce Mussolini in Italy or Caudillo Franco in Spain at the head of its regime, whatever it may call itself in the Jap language, corresponding to Nazism, Communism, Fascism or Falangism.

The Japs appear to be sliding into totalitarianism by way of capitalism's suppression. At least that's the initial step. Presumably ordinary human rights will be abolished likewise, shortly. Capitalists get the gaff initially, however. The Mikado's government is quoted, in dispatches from Tokio, as describing 'em as "radicals." That is, they're radically disinclined to be dispossessed of the last cent of their bank accounts.

France, state departmental reports indicate, is starting in totalitarianism's direction from the angle opposite to the Japanese one. Marshal Petain's scheme is to extinguish his country's electoral system — a jab at popular voting. The best guess is that he'll get around to capitalism later, not first, as the Japs are doing.

France, same as Japan, lacks a conspicuous big man at the top of its totalitarian heap. Petain's too old to last much longer. Furthermore, his authority isn't his own. It's Herr Hitler's. Adolf is it in Germany. Mussolini is it in Italy—with a lot of qualifications, but not as many as the marshal's. Stalin, up to date, is it in Russia. Franco's it, for the present in Spain. When the Japs evolve their Fuehrer or Duce or boss commissar or Caudillo or whatever they may call him, he'll be it in Nippon. Petain, though, isn't anything in his own right. Still, he's doing his darndest to turn France into a totalitarian nation.

Who Pulls Strings?

Japan formally announced itself governmentally. Precisely who did the dictating isn't revealed yet. The Mikado, all-powerful as he is theoretically, really is only a figurehead. There must be some whale of a huge influence in Tokio who hasn't been identified yet.

The nub of it is that this supreme authority has "eliminated every capitalistic element from the national economic structure" by making all private financial institutions "subsidiaries of the governmentally-controlled Bank of Japan." In short, every single sen (Jap equivalent of one of our pennies) is "mobilized in the state's interest."

The fact is that the Japs' lower classes haven't property enough to be worth taking away from 'em. Ever hear of a rickshaw coolie? Well, a rickshaw is a kind of a tiny little pheaton, accommodating one passenger. The coolie (a human being) runs like fury between the shafts, snaking the vehicle along after him. He generally dies before long, for the pace gives him heart disease. He makes a few coppers per day while he does live, though. Well, that guy pays an income tax. It's like making a horse pay one.

So it's no wonder the Jap fuehrer starts at the "radical capitalists'" end of the line, leaving the other end to be attended to later.

Health and Diet

Swimming the Ideal Exercise.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

SWIMMING is the ideal form of exercise because "it calls into play the general body musculature and produces the elongated, smoothly functioning type of muscle in a uniformly developed body." This is the opinion of an eminent physician, as well as an expert swimmer, Dr. David Mezz, of Brooklyn.

This should be good news in this season of swimming. Natural water is best—the ocean, the lake, the river The ocean is so saturated with oxygen that it detoxicates all noxious matter almost instantly. Sea animals are so used to a high oxygen content in their environment that they will hardly live an hour in a bucket of sea water that can not renew its vitalizing force.

Safe Swimming Pools.

Modern hygiene and the work of sanitary engineers have made artificial pools safe and comfortable. The bacterial content of the water, cleanness of the water, personal cleanliness of the bathers, laundering of suits, maintenance of sanitary conditions on the premises have led to great reduction in the incidence of disease conditions from swimming pools.

Filtration of the water, and reduction of bacteria by ultraviolet ray or passage of the water through ozonating machines or the chemical treatment of the water by chlorine do not make the water at all harmful and have eliminated a great deal of contamination and cross infections.

Swimming, although ideal from the standpoint of the number of muscles used and the way they are used, is subject to some hazards. The fact that the body is sustained and suspended by the specific gravity of the water makes swimming seem less effortless than it really is and leads to tempting the swimmer to exertion beyond his powers. It is a common experience of swimmers to be surprised at the amount of fatigue they feel after what they thought was a moderate amount of exercise.

Limit Time in Water.

Then too, the water as a medium keeps the body cool, and there is no warming sense of overheating to tell the swimmer he has had enough. Dr. Taylor and Dr. Dayrenforth in a recent study concluded that body chilling from swimming caused definite changes which predispose to infections of the nose and ears.

The number of white cells in the blood is reduced on the surface of the body and the protective powers of the fixed tissue cells are reduced as well as a change in the mucous membrane of the nose. This from chilling alone, to say nothing of the washing away of the protective coating of mucous in the nose and the shrinking of the mucous membrane from the effect of the water.

The warning is very definite and applies to all, even the strongest and most confident swimmer. The limit of bathing time should be 45 minutes.

French Ships Remain Untouched, Despite Attempts To Seize Them

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—With Great Britain scraping up every ship possible, with the United States trying to lease Axis ships from Latin American governments, and with Secretary Ickes desperately trying to relieve the eastern oil shortage with more tankers, the inside story of French ships in the U. S. A. is extremely interesting.

Not many people realize it, but although we have taken over all of the German, Italian, Danish, and Axis shipping, we have not touched French vessels, except to guard them from sabotage.

And almost no one realizes that we actually have let some of them return with American cargoes to French African waters. In fact, French vessels seem to bear a charmed life as far as the United States is concerned.

Recently the maritime commission had an embarrassing experience when the "America" served as a transport, and some of the blue-jackets pilfered silverware and linen. Not wanting the same thing to happen to the giant French liner Normandie, the maritime commission sought to make an inventory of its luxurious trimmings so that they could be safely stored for the French in case the vessel was requisitioned in a hurry.

The Normandie has about $6,000,000 worth of furnishings, and the commission figured that about 25 per cent of them would disappear if she carried troops without first storing the furnishings. So Admiral Land, chairman of the commission, telephoned the state department asking permission to make an inventory. To which the state department gave an emphatic No. No one, the maritime commission was warned, could go near the ship.

What has not leaked out is that last spring, before armed guards were placed on all French ships in American harbors, Admiral Leahy, U. S. ambassador in Vichy, had promised the French that these ships would not be touched. It is understood he acted on instructions from Washington. So after the coast guard boarded the Normandie and other French vessels, Vichy sent a strong protest to Washington on May 26.

The state department drafted a reply to this note, then decided not to answer it at all. Apparently it was caught between Leahy's promise and the coast guard's action. The note still is unanswered. And now the state department, having got itself in an untenable position, is leaning over backwards to appease Vichy regarding these ships.

Also it is going to unusual lengths in using the ships to appease General Weygand in North Africa.

Report on Weygand.

WHEN it was first suggested that a certain number of French ships be permitted to load up with goods for North Africa, the British, through Sir Henry Salter, registered vigorous opposition, and Harry Hopkins promised to intervene with the state department.

The state department, however, insisted that the French would agree to send one of their ships to the United States for every ship we sent to North African waters, so they over-ruled both the maritime commission and the British.

What influenced the state department was a report from Robert Murphy, counselor of the American embassy in Vichy, who had taken a special trip to North Africa to see Marshal Weygand. He reported that if the United States would send French ships loaded with U. S. goods, Weygand would permit American observers to remain at Dakar, and would not oust American consuls from French Africa, even if Hitler demanded it.

History can prove whether the state department is justified. But meanwhile both the British and the maritime commission have very definite views which they are not waiting for history to express.

French Oil Tankers.

WHAT particularly incenses the British is that the state department is allowing two tankers to load up with American oil and aviation gasoline. This will permit the 300-to-400 grounded airplanes in Morocco to be used—possibly against the British.

In the end, the British decided not to make a last ditch fight. "We have so many other problems of major importance to settle," they told friends, "that we don't think it best to object further to this."

What the maritime commission and Secretary Ickes covet most are the nine French oil tankers now gathering barnacles in the harbor of Martinique.

The maritime commission proposes chartering them and if necessary paying good hard dollars to the French. These tankers, making one trip a month with oil from Venezuela, could carry 560,000 barrels a month, which would practically remove Secretary Ickes' fears of an oil shortage.

But desperately as oil is needed on the Atlantic coast, the state department leans over backward not to offend the French.

Note — British sources report about 3,500 Nazi technicians in French Africa, from Dakar to Casablanca, busy building airdromes and installing big guns—pointed toward the coast of South America.

Goering In Disgrace?

REPORTS that Marshal Goering is out of favor and has been confined to his luxurious home in Karinhall have revived in Washington the story of the British ambassador's last visit to that home before the war broke.

Ambassador Sir Nevile Henderson had gone to see Goering in an effort to pacify him. When the interview was over, Henderson sent the following report to Lord Halifax, then foreign minister, now ambassador to Washington:

"Though I was in a hurry, he insisted on showing me, with much pride, the great structural alterations which he was making in his house at Karinhall and which includes a new dining room to hold an incredible number of guests and to be all marble and hung with tapestries.

"He also produced with pride some drawings of tapestries, mostly representing naked ladies and labeled with the names of the various virtues, such as Goodness, Mercy, Purity. I told him that they looked at least pacific, but I failed to see Patience among them."

This was just before Germany invaded Poland.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Stories about "trailer towns" have been popping up for years, but the Farm Security administration has ticked off the greatest story of them all. It's connected with national defense.

Let's go back to the days of the "Okies," when FSA was under the guns and trying to provide "temporary shelter" for the migrant workers flowing back and forth across the land. The trailer offered a quick solution and, in a comparatively small way, it was put to use.

The problem had hardly been gotten in hand when along came national defense. Boom towns appeared overnight. There was no chance to provide adequate housing. Congress, in desperation, appropriated $300,000,000 for defense housing. Some of the problems could be solved by so-called "low cost housing projects," developed over a period of months.

But one problem was a stumper—the 'stop-gap housing," or temporary shelter—which would take care of a rapid influx of workers in communities totally unprepared to house even a 10 per cent increase in population—much less the two, three or four hundred per cent increases that did result in some communities.

All Output Absorbed.

THE government turned to the only agency that had had any experience in this problem and FSA went all out for "mobile housing."

This "mobile housing" has resulted in a phase of living which may hang on for many years. In an even dozen defense areas, FSA now has 3,194 trailers, housing from two to five persons, at rentals of from $6 to $6.50 a week. Not only is the total output of the trailer industry completely absorbed now, but, according to estimates here, the output for the next six months is wholly contracted.

At the moment, there are camps of 200 or more trailers at Baltimore, Erie, Pa; Ravenna, Ohio; Burlington, Iowa; Kingsbury-LaPorte, Ind.; Jacksonville, and Wilmington, N. C.; Nashville, Tenn.; and San Diego; and smaller camps at Paso Robles and Benicia, Calif.; and Bethlehem, Pa.

Built in units around service buildings, these trailer camps closely resemble the trailer towns that follow the seasonal migrations along the two coasts. There is, however, one important difference. National defense trailers do not have to be always on the go. They might settle down in a community for a year or so until their wheels are hub deep in the soil.

Have to Be Costly.

THIS is a vital difference and behind it lies the story of why the trailer industry, booming five or six years ago, was caught short when the government went into the trailer market. Safe trailers cost money—big money. If they are going to be yanked all over the land from border to border, they have to be on sturdy frames. If they are going to be occupied in winter and summer, they have to be built like permanent homes. Such trailers—luxury homes, in a sense — never could be built to supply only migratory workers' incomes. Thus, the recession of 1937 played hob with the trailer industry and when the government went into the market with a wholesale demand, it found a very low supply.

Under the impetus of government demand, the trailer business is booming again, but whether it will last is "another problem. 'Stop gap" housing is just what the name implies and it doesn't last for ever. Better methods catch up with it and make it obsolete.

Day after tomorrow, with low-cost, prefabricated housing supplanting the stop-gaps, the story of trailer towns of from 1,000 to 2,000 persons may be merely something with which bearded grandpas will bore or delight the children.

A Farmer's Diary

Chestnut Bloom

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE OTHER DAY I found some chestnut blooms. They grew on a clump of shoots more than ten feet high that had sprouted from the base of the blighted parent tree. The long gray racemes hung from the terminal branches like fuzzy worms, and I sniffed that peculiarly pungent odor that used to permeate chestnut groves.

It brought back memories of the days when half the timbered mountain side was chestnut and even in cultivated fields, large fruitful trees were left for nutting after the frosts of brown October. Often I have played, as a little boy, beneath a border of such trees with their dangling blooms, while my father cradled wheat in the nearby field and my mother and older brother bound the sheaves by hand. I used to think the odor of the blooms, from a distance, resembled that of a kettle of boiling soft soap.

It brought back memories of huckleberry time along these native ridges—the low blue kind from which we filled our pails to overflowing. Then, for a larger container, we used to cut down a chestnut sapling, and girdle it 16 inches or more below. We pounded lightly with a club on all parts of this surface, until the bark was loosened from the wood. This we shoved upward, like a sleeve, until we had smooth cylinder of bark. This was punctured below and two or three small twigs were inserted to make a floor with a layer of leaves pressed firmly down upon them. A piece of string or twine — or even a tough thin wild grape—long enough to swing it around one's shoulder like a postman's bag—completed a "huckleberry toot," that might hold two gallons. The moist fragrance of the inside of the "toot" always enhanced the flavor of the huckleberries.

Now I marked the spot where these few rare blooms are growing and came back and took my two older boys along that they might see the peculiar bloom of this passing race of trees. We hope, this autumn, if some squirrel or chipmunk does not get there first or if the blight does not strike too soon, to find a few of the prickly burrs with their lustrous dark brown nuts.

MONA MAE McBRIDE WEDS CHARLES REED

Formal Service Solemnized Sunday Afternoon At St. Paul's Lutheran Church At 3 O'clock; Open Church Observed.

IN A lovely formal wedding gown of white sheer, fashioned Princess style, Miss Mona Mae McBride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. McBride, 21 Wellington avenue, approached the altar of the St. Paul's Lutheran church Sunday afternoon to repeat her nuptial vows. She became the bride of Charles Reed of Boughton avenue, son of Mr. and Mrs. Len Reed of Attica.

Miss McBride's gown was made with a sweetheart neckline, leg-o-mutton sleeves, and a long train. Her illusion veil was finger-tip length and was held in place by a cluster of orange blossoms and lilies of the valley. Her only jewelry was a gold locket, a gift of the bridegroom, and a gold bracelet, worn by her mother at her wedding. She carried a white Bible covered with white roses tied with white satin streamers. Mr. McBride gave his daughter in marriage.

The single ring service was solemnized by Rev. H. L. Gilbert at 3 o'clock in the presence of many relatives and friends. Nuptial music was played by Mr. Seybold. Palms, ferns and two seven-branch candelabra formed a pretty background for the tall beauty baskets of mixed flowers.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. McBride wore a powder blue crepe frock with pink picture hat and white accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses. Mrs. Reed wore a black and white dress with white accessories. Her corsage was of white roses.

Attending the bride was Miss Velma Robinson who wore a formal gown of peacock blue taffeta, made similar to that of the bridal gown. Pale yellow was used for the trim around the sweetheart neckline. She carried an arm bouquet of roses, baby breath and sweetpeas tied with yellow satin streamers.

Serving Mr. Reed as best man was his brother, Sam, of Attica. Ushers were Russell McBride, brother of the bride, and Richard Robinson, both of Mansfield.

Following the wedding a reception for 100 guests was held on the lawn of the McBride home. Silver and white appointments decorated the serving table which was centered with a large bouquet of mixed flowers.

Late in the day Mr. and Mrs. Reed left for a southern trip. Upon their return they will reside at 39 Baldwin avenue. For traveling the bride wore a black and white ensemble with white accessories. Her corsage was of orchids and roses.

Mrs. Reed was graduated from Mansfield high school and the Warner Beauty college. She has been employed as a beautician. Mr. Reed, a graduate of Mansfield high school, is employed at the Tappan Stove company.

Guests were present from Detroit, Sandusky, Attica, Toledo, Shelby, Bucyrus and Lucas.

Picnic dinner was served at 1 o'clock at a long table decorated with garden flowers. A short program followed the dinner. Talks were given by Harry McCready, Ashland; Dr. Morris G. Caldwell, director of corrections for the state of Wisconsin, from Madison, Wis.; Robert McCready, Akron, and Mrs. Arminta Eller, Ermine McCready and Marvin McCready of Mansfield. Designers Do A Little Digging For Style Changes

Fashion Goes Rummaging In The Museums

By AMY PORTER
(AP) Fashion Editor.

Any little cotton frock you buy is likely to be a museum piece—or related to one.

That's because, all of a sudden, fashion is art, and the country's museums, one by one, are taking it up.

The august Metropolitan Museum in New York unbent to the fashionable trend and permitted a show of fashions inspired by Pennsylvania Dutch folk-art in its Early American wing. Pretty models dressed in Mennonite "bird-in-tree" prints and Amish aprons and bonnets pranced against a background of art for art's sake.

Museum patrons looked startled, but pleased, to see how a dignified pewter piece had evolved into a tight-over-the-bosom, full-over-the hips pewter print play costume for a fine figure of a girl.

Other museums have been fashion-conscious for some time. The Museum of Modern Art plugged fashions of American Indian inspiration, the Brooklyn museum showed eighteenth century costumes and their modern counterparts, Cooper Union displayed early Persian baby clothes and baby shoes. The Museum of Costume Art, of course, devotes itself to nothing but fashion, covering all periods, all countries.

The working girl's summer is greatly simplified, now that the smartest town clothes are washable. Even some of the spun rayon has joined the safe-in-soapsuds group. Cottons bloom with new citified charm, fashioned into formal looking daytime dress suits.

The popular broomstick skirt, very full, made of crinkled cotton, has given rise to broomstick panties—little tight pants of matching fabric.

For informal evenings all summer long, a girl graduate frock of Swiss organdy. Pretty in pale pastels, as well as in traditional white. The high neckline and elbow sleeves are finished with tiny self ruffles.

Betty Weil Marries In Cincinnati On Saturday

MR AND MRS. MANUEL F. WEIL, 36 Bartley avenue, announce the marriage of their daughter, Betty, to Sidney Weisenberg of Cincinnati. The informal service was solemnized on Saturday evening at the Netherland Plaza Hotel in Cincinnati with Rabbi Victor Reichert officiating in the presence of the immediate families. Mr. and Mrs. Weil and Robert Weil were those in attendance from Mansfield.

For the quiet ceremony Miss Weil wore a dusty rose street length ensemble with brown accessories. Her corsage was of white snapdragons. Mr. Weil and Mrs. Aaron Weissenberg, mother of the bridegroom, attended the young couple.

Following the nuptials a wedding dinner was served at the Netherland Plaza Hotel for the bridal party. After a honeymoon trip to Miami Beach, Fla., and Havana, Mr. and Mrs. Wissenberg will reside at the Phelps Apartment hotel in Cincinnati.

The bride was graduated from Mansfield high school and lived in Mansfield her entire life until two years ago when she went to Cincinnati to work. CHAPTER XIII

"Leave me alone," Doris said coldly. "What can you possibly have to say to me?"

George Malone did not move. "I advise you not to make a scene. I want to talk to you."

Doris told herself that this was ridiculous. He had no right to ask anything of her. Nevertheless she waited.

"I see you and your boy friend have made up."

Doris pressed her nails into the palms of her hands. "What's that to you?" she demanded in a furious undertone. "If you don't stop annoying me I'm going to report you."

"That would be extremely foolish my dear. You see I understand your little plot. I haven't followed you all over South America for nothing.

"Followed her? Why? Doris looked at the hard, square face, the thin mouth. There was no mercy, no decency in him.

"Jimmy Allen is an extremely wealthy young man. I like him." Malone paused to light a cigaret. "And I hate to see him get taken for his money. I think I'll have a little chat with him."

"You must be crazy!" Doris said, wondering for a moment if he really were insane.

"Of course if you can make it worth my while not to talk to him, we would both be better off. There's plenty of money in it for both. Let's say, that you give me a thousand dollars now—just for a start, naturally."

Doris could not believe her ears. This man was blackmailing her. It was more like a fantastic movie than real life.

"I happen to know," Malone continued, "that Mr. Allen had a most unfortunate experience in his first marriage. He's very sensitive on the subject. I'm certain he won't want to make the same mistake twice. If I told him what he was getting into he might see things a little differently."

"But it's not true," Doris protested. "And Jimmy wouldn't believe it. Besides, you don't know anything about me."

"That's where you're wrong," he contradicted her. "I know everything about you and I can prove it. "But what was there to know? Certainly Doris had had nothing to hide in her unexciting life. She stared at him, trying to understand the depths of this evil mind. The corridor was dimly lit. The quiet seemed deadly. There was no sound except the occasional creak of the ship, which broke the stillness like a groan.

George Malone stood before her, a hard-faced man, in the fifties. He was smiling. Doris noticed that his suit was expensive but too loud for good taste. His fingernails were dirty. There was a purple-tinged scar on his right hand. Terror seized her. Who was this man? What did he want of her?

Suddenly he dropped his pretense of oily politeness. "Okay, Doris, what's the answer? Do I talk to your boy friend or do I get the money?"

Doris was slow to anger but her pent-up fury now burst over her in a rush of loathing and revulsion.

"There's your answer!" she cried. And she struck him full in the face.

His voice was controlled but the gray eyes glittered like points of steel. "You'll be sorry for that, you little fool!"

Doris ran into her cabin, locked the door and leaned weakly against it. For a moment there was no sound, then she heard his footsteps retreating down the corridor. What was she to do? Telling Jimmy of George Malone's attempt at blackmail would only cause trouble for everyone. And how could she prove it? What would Jimmy think if someone warned him that she was marrying him for his money—that a second girl was angling for his fortune? Surely he would not believe it, but he would be upset. It would be so unpleasant, so cheap. She couldn't bear to have things spoiled now.

Doris felt sure that George Malone must be bluffing her. He would not have the nerve to actually tell Jimmy a lie like that. Even if he did, he would not get any money out of it, and that, obviously, was all he wanted. Doris decided not to mention it to Jimmy. She had nothing to fear. Let Malone say what he pleased. Jimmy would not believe him. If he loved her, he must trust her. If he loved her, he would know how deeply she cared for him. He would see through this fantastic scheme.

She powdered her nose and combed her hair, hoping to return to Jimmy before he would demand an explanation. But as she unlocked her cabin door May Whittier came down the corridor.

"Where in the world have you been?" she inquired airily. "Jimmy sent me down to look for you."

"I was just leaving," Doris told her.

May eyed the pink evening gown. "Lovely dress!" she murmured. "You know I could never understand how you working girls could afford clothes like that . . . on such a small salary."

Doris bit her lip but her voice was smooth. She was determined to have no trouble with May, or anyone else. Somehow she must manage to keep things happy for Jimmy until they could get to New York.

"I won a radio contest," she explained patiently. "I bought my clothes and took this trip with that."

"You don't say? What a swell story! And how clever of you!"

Doris could not let that remark go unchallenged.

"Meaning what?" she asked, coldly raising serious blue eyes to the other girl.

"Well, after all, what do most women take trips for? Always on the chance of getting a husband, preferably a rich one!" Her expression was mocking.

Doris allowed her voice its full measure of sarcasm. "Maybe that's why you take trips, Miss Whittier. Please don't speak for the rest of us!"

She won her point. May's pretty face turned hard beneath her anger.

"Any girl who sells stockings in a department store basement would be a fool to pass up a man in Jimmy Allen's position!"

"Apparently you don't believe in love," Doris retorted.

May laughed. "Who does in these times? Money can buy anything—even love!"

Sudden realization came to Doris. She saw now quite clearly that May Whittier wanted Jimmy for herself. This girl, in spite of her breeding and background, wanted Jimmy Allen's money! But no one would believe that a girl in May's position could stoop low enough to marry for money. It was only girls who came from Klane's basement who were suspected of "gold-digging." Under the guise of a childhood friend, May Whittier had been pursuing Jimmy, even following him home on this ship.

Realizing this Doris, laughed. "You know, Miss Whittier, it will be a relief to get back to Klane's basement! It's so respectable!"

May was beyond insult. "I said you were clever!" she cried, "but it won't do you any good. Jimmy will never believe anything against me."

"I have no intention of telling him what you said, if that's what you mean. I don't think he'll be interested.

"You might be surprised," May laughed.

Doris felt faintly ill as she went back on deck. Her experience with George Malone and May Whittier had made her feel that there was no kindness left in the world. Poor Jimmy! It must have been this way all his life. Little wonder that he was afraid to trust anyone! Yet she knew that if she were to tell him what had occurred, it would only upset him and make him more suspicious. She must keep these small annoyances from him.

He was waiting for her in the lounge. "I thought you'd run out on me," he said, but she could see that he was not angry.

Each time she saw him he seemed more attractive. She forgot, in even a few minutes of separation, how endearing, how magnetic he was. The compelling blue eyes, that could be so hard, or so tender.

"Did May tell you I was waiting?"

"Yes, she told me." Doris wondered what he would do if she said, "May is planning to marry you for your money, Jimmy." He would not believe her, of course.

Instead she said, "Does May travel a lot?"

Jimmy shrugged indifferently. "Not any more. They lost nearly everything a few years ago. Don't know how she managed this trip."

So that was it! Her family had lost their money! She must have followed Jimmy deliberately on this trip. The expensive clothes she wore, were, no doubt, not even paid for.

"Let's walk," Jimmy suggested. The strolled all over the ship. Through corridors and lounges and on the decks. Once they paused before a mirror.

Jimmy grinned. "Nice looking couple, aren't we?"

Her golden head came barely to his shoulder. She looked even younger than her nineteen years. The candid blue eyes were sweetly serious, and though she carried herself erectly, she still seemed small and delicate in the soft pink jacket. Jimmy, beside her, was well-built and debonair. His clothes fit with that careless perfection that few men achieve.

They laughed together at their reflection. "You're an angel," he informed her. "If another man ever looks at you, I'll break his neck."

"I don't want anyone else, ever," Doris told him.

"I'm possessive," he warned her. "It made me furious to see you with that Argentine. I was crazy with jealousy."

She laughed softly. "You'll have no reason to be jealous now, darling. I'll never look at another man."

"Promise?"

"I promise!" How much he needed her! She had watched his sensitive reaction to her slightest expression. He wanted her loyalty as well as her love. It broke her heart to think of him at the mercy of a girl who had tricked him into marriage. What a curse money could be! Doris wished that Jimmy Allen were penniless. Then he would know how much she loved him! Then she could prove her love! Prove her love against the evil minds of people like George Malone and May Whittier!

"There's something I forgot to ask you," Jimmy was saying. "Will you marry me when the ship docks in New York?"

Women Dress For Others, Not for Men

By BEATICE FAIRFAX

The question whether women dress to please men or for each other has been definitely settled, it seems, by the long martyrdom they have served to unbecoming hats.

The age-long controversy has been waged for centuries concerning clothes and whether they've been worn to charm gentlemen into proposing and, thereby, assuming milliner's bills for life, or to incite sisterly rivalry.

As long as woman's place was in the home, and it was necessary to annex a man to provide one, or live in the home of a married relative as an unpaid drudge, fashions were created to bewitch the male into offering a permanent alliance. But now that women have got the vote, now that they enter the professions, politics, hold jobs and go in for careers, they dress to outdo each other, whether the clothes they wear are becoming or not.

Sarah Bernhardt said, and no one could have been more of a siren than the Divine Sarah, that skirts created mystery and that mystery was woman's chief ally. What would Sarah say to see women waddling along in slacks, their heads done up in unbecoming turbans which suggest the bandage the cook used to tie around her head in the good old days when she gave notice she had a headache and would stand no backtalk?

We hear of a prominent movie star going into a dining room in "formal shorts." Will someone please tell me what are "formal shorts?" But now there is a ray of hope across the dreary horizon of the clothes women buy to outsmart each other. Milo Anderson, a Hollywood stylist and best known for his adaptation of period gowns for the screen, says that for the first time in ten years women's hats have started to be becoming.

Brimmed hats are becoming to almost every type of face; to the young, because they gave a certain piquancy to the features; to older women because they shade telltale wrinkles. Even if Mrs. Jones next door is wearing a sports felt the color of a lime drop, Mrs. Smith, if she's wise, will not follow suit. When the older woman falls for something in tomato red, she tries to turn the trick with a vermillion lipstick and scarlet sage rouge. Let us hope that her eyes do not reflect her handiwork in her mirror.

Even if a woman has been taught since babyhood to conceal the fact that she has brains, she'd be safe in employing them by studying her own type. Transferred to clothes, it's the old adage of what's one man's meat is another man's poison. Since it's well for the thin beauty not to select styles which exaggerate her slenderness. Such women look charming in bouffant skirts that may or may not conceal hoops. But for the love of Mike, let the little fatty beware of the bouffant!

Now that woman is accepted in public life let it be said that she made a better job of dressing when she selected her clothes to please her current boy friend than she does at the present time, when she buys hideously unbecoming things to "show" her neighbor.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Of course you have my permission to tell your father everything I have told you which you think might be of use to him."

"There is something else," I said hesitantly. "You said you could not prove the truth of the information you have concerning Stephen Redfield's connection with that alien organization. But—my father has many ways of getting at the truth. Would you be willing to see him when he comes, and tell him frankly everything that you suspect—and your reasons for your conjectures—omitting nothing, no matter how trivial it may seem to you?"

She was plainly upset now. Her hands fluttered nervously and her eyes were troubled. I was sure, however, that it was but the natural trepidation of an old woman, unused to intrigue. And in another quarter minute she had pulled herself together, and was answering me calmly.

Nancy Thoughtful of Others.

"I shall be very glad, indeed, to talk to your father," she said, "although I must admit that the thought of his interrogating me is a bit terrifying. And I will answer his every question faithfully."

"That is all that is necessary," I said reassuringly, then spiked a fear before she could utter it.

"Nobody save my father and myself will know that you have given him any information," I told her.

"I hoped for that," she said simply. "I hope you understand also that I do not fear for myself. But much of the information I have comes from what you might call 'little people,' and discovery that they have talked loosely might injure them."

"I understand perfectly," I said. "Don't do any more worrying. My father isn't a formidable person."

"I saw him once, and thought he was a dear," she rejoined. "And I'll rack my memory and prepare to tell him everything. He probably will be able to separate the chaff from the wheat."

"Indeed he will," I told her heartily, "and he will be most grateful to you."

Leaves Madge Free.

"If you will excuse me now, I will run along," she said, "for I know how many things you must have on your brain and heart. And besides, I don't want Mary to guess that I have been consulting you about her."

"She will never know that," I assured her, giving her hands a comradely clasp before releasing them. "Now, one thing more. I am afraid my father will want to see you shortly after he arrives."

"When do you expect him?" she countered.

"Not for another hour, at the least," I said.

Thinks Redfield Has Fled.

"That's good," she said. "I shall have plenty of time to search my memory, and I can't get to sleep for hours yet anyway—never can after a party. I'm going to leave the party directly after I go back and say goodbye to the Veritzens. I have a sneaking idea that I won't have to say good-bye to the guest of honor. I'll lay a little wager that Stevie has discreetly vanished."

"I won't take that wager," I told her, "but I wish you would do something for me at the party."

"Name it," she said promptly.

"I wish you would take Mary aside, when you get a chance," I said, "and ask her to come over to me here, as soon as she can possibly get away without spoiling the party."

Tomorrow's Problem.

If West leads the heart 3 to the A and East returns the club J, how should South play this hand to make 5-Spades?

Twenty-eight per cent of the soil in the Dutch East Indies is of volcanic origin.

Dr. Myers On Church Schooling

In these days of war and destruction, fears and anxieties, emphasis on things which cannot be destroyed is certainly desirable.

Religion at home and at school provides this emphasis. As never before, we parents and our children need this helpful and sustaining influence.

Unfortunately so many parents and children, whole families take vacation from Sunday school and church, and tend to relax in their religion at home, during the summer.

Here let me say a word about church schools during the summer, often referred to as "Vacation Bible Schools." In this church program the church building, or a part of it, is used daily throughout the week as a school building for any child of the community who wishes to attend. It is free to all, as a rule.

Weary mothers are relieved for several hours a day. Their children are protected to a large degree from the physical and moral hazards of the street. Moreover, these children receive wholesome moral and religious training under the guidance of fine persons.

Activities At School.

In these schools children learn from the Bible and other great literature—I wish they were motivated to memorize more from these sources. They sing together or make music with instruments. They create with crayons, paint, and blocks. They exercise in dramatic art and learn games they can play in the home and on the playground. They learn to do many wholesome things together.

In order to make the vacation church school effective, let me urge that there be much reading aloud by older children to younger children in very small groups. There could be a dozen or more such small groups in a building. Many high school girls could be attracted to this service.

While I would encourage considerable teaching from the Bible, and religious and moral training, I wish that music, drama and pageantry were employed more to these ends.

I like the atmosphere of tolerance which the vacation church school affords, being open to children of all faiths or no faith. I wish each child attending school could be made to want to attend the church or Sunday school of his parents' faith or preference.

Solving Parent Problems.

Q. My three-year-old child won't listen while I read to her.

A. Find a book with good illustrations on every page and little reading matter to the page. As the child is lured to look at the picture, read from the page, telling what the picture says. Gradually while the child looks, she also listens. What she sees grows more interesting because of what she hears and vice-versa. The moment the youngster lags in interest, close the book and put it away. At repeated intervals later bring the book back. It won't be long until she will be begging for you to read.

Butterscotch Biscuit Rolls.

1 cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup shortening ½ cup raisins
½ cup chopped nuts
1 cup sugar
1 scant teaspoon powdered chicory

Directions: Cream brown sugar with shortening, and add powdered chicory. Line several layer cake pans with mixture. Make biscuit dough, using the basic recipe which we will give you next, rolling out to thickness of ¼ inch. Sprinkle rest of ingredients on top. Roll and cut in ½ inch pieces. Place in sugar lined pans and bake in hot oven until done—usually about 20 minutes.

John Adams probably started the custom of observing the Fourth of July as a national holiday. When the Declaration or Independence was signed, July 4, 1776, he said the day "ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with guns, bells and bonfire."

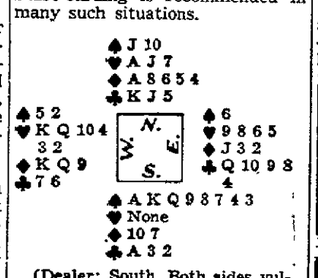
"The Authority on Authorities"

HELPING THE DECLARER

THERE ARE plenty of contracts which the declarer should make, by exactly correct play, regardless of what his opponents may do. But some of them require considerable astuteness on his part to decide upon his course of action, unless the defenders do something which helps guide him. Fine defensive players are particularly careful about giving too accurate information with their discards when they are trying to beat a grand slam contract, for their partner is unlikely to gain the lead and thus be in position to make use of their information. False-carding is recommended in many such situations.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♦	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♥	Pass
5 NT	Pass	6 ♦	Pass
7 NT	Dbl

South already had a good deal of information about the defenders' holdings when West doubled, and possessed still more when the heart K was led. She was a most optimistic bidder to try the grand slam knowing from her partner's Blackwood responses that two kings were out against her, especially to try it in No Trumps. But it was Barbara de Castillo's favorite duplicate game in New York, and she was out for undisputed tops.

The opening lead was, of course, won by the heart A, and then followed three rounds of spades. Seeing the club finesse against the Q as the most likely and easy way to build the 13th trick, which was not otherwise in sight, she changed plans when East discarded the club 10 on the second spade and the club 4 on the third one. Unless those were false cards, the club finesse would lose. So she got busy to build a double squeeze.

Running off the club K and A, then a bunch of spades, she discarded so that, when the last spade was led the dummy held the heart J, which only West could beat, and the diamond A-8. In her own hand she also had the diamond 10 and club 2. On the spade West could not discard his heart Q and thus set up dummy's J, so threw his diamond Q. The heart J was then shed from dummy, and East had an impossible job. With the diamond J-3 to guard against dummy's second trick there, he also had the club Q, and threw that off. So the club 2 and diamond A got the last two tricks.

BAKING POWDER BISCUIT—Basic Recipe

(In making biscuits always remember that the dough must be made quickly.)

2 cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅔ cup milk
4 tablespoons shortening
2 teaspoons baking powder

Directions: Sift flour once, add baking powder and salt; then sift again. Cut in shortening with pastry blender. Stir milk in slowly until all flour is dampened. Keep stirring carefully until soft dough is formed, and turn out immediately on lightly floured board. Knead for about 30 seconds, just enough to make dough easy to roll out. Use a lightly floured rolling pin, and just touch dough with a very light movement, to a thickness of ¼ inch. Cut into size you desire, with a regular biscuit cutter. Bake on ungreased baking sheet in hot oven—450 degrees—for about 15 minutes, or until as brown as you wish them to be.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, July 22.

Great activity, perhaps of an unforeseen nature, is read from the dominant astral influences. There is likely to be much stirring about, with travel, correspondence, new agreements and interests, and all out of the ordinary, novel or unexpected. However, there is danger of jeopardizing lucrative and ambitious prospects by rash, impulsive and precipitate conduct as well as through carelessness in signing papers, contracts or in making verbal agreements. Loss may also threaten, as well as quarrels and disputes. Youth may prosper and find enjoyment.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a very lively and eventful year, with matters taking a surprising turn. Change, travel, new, even bold and uncommon ideas and techniques, may prove lucrative and give much personal gratification. But such glowing promises may be defeated by rash or reckless acts, impetuous or aggressive moves, quarrels, arguments or violent emotions. Safeguard papers, writings and be cautious with speech, as well. A time for youthful expression and pleasures.

A child born on this day should have many talents, with ideas and ambitions of an original, exceptional or surprising nature. It may have an eventful career but probably beset by strife, impetuosity and tumultuous adventures.

Braves Snare Tenth Straight Victory on Home Lot

Sport Podge by REX HESS

"Helzapoppin" is still just the name of a musical comedy. It's too mild a word to describe the goings-on that'll mark a special Ohio State league meeting tomorrow night at Fremont.

Four of the six clubs in the league forced the session through special petition, and very much against the wishes of league Prexy Joe Donnelly.

The subject at hand is "umpiring," and the petitioning clubs are demanding that something be done about it.

The old heave-ho is being prepared, and from the expressions I've heard, the complaining clubs don't care much whether it's the umpires who are heaved, or Donnelly himself.

But they're going to give Donnelly the chance of shining the boot on the blue trousers of several of his arbiters first.

* * *

They're determined, to a man,
To put the umpires on the pan.

—Rumblings that have been heard from the smaller cities in the Ohio State loop broke into a full roar at the league all-star game last week when Lima took the lead in the drive against the incompetent arbiting that has been going on in the circuit, and originated the petition for tomorrow night's meeting.

Donnelly's suspension of Gene Kavanaugh and Johnny Cindric after the players had a run-in with Umpire Mort Watkins, brought on the pressure from Lima. Both suspensions were made indefinite after Watkins reported the players had pushed him around and tapped their fingers on his chest.

Laying of hands on an umpire can call for a 90-day suspension.

Not all of the league umpires are included in the blast now being put on by the complaining clubs. Far from it Bill Ward has the complete approval of all baseball men in the circuit, with his record of no fines or suspensions in games he has worked

Dewey Stover, the old Mansfield manager, also has won the support of league clubs through his work in the short time he has been in the circuit, and Glenn Bendigo, new arbiter from Pennsylvania, has appeared good enough thus far

Of the remaining trio, Don Karns who worked here yesterday, appears the best of the lot, and may escape the house cleaning that has been promised

* * *

Watkins and Bulmon are the ginks
Whose work, the moguls maintain, stinks.

It may have been Watkins' bad luck that he has been paired with Bulmon in most of his league games Bulmon, who formerly ran Art Haag a close race for the title of the league's lousiest umpire until Haag was bounced by Donnelly certainly set no good example for Watkins who appears a nice enough guy otherwise.

The league club owners, so I'm told, are ready to tell Donnelly tomorrow night: "Get rid of Bulmon and Watkins or we'll get rid of you and get somebody who will get rid of them."

Fortunately Mansfield fans have been spared the work of Bulmon and Watkins through most of the past three weeks, with Ward and Stover doing most of the thumb waving at the Fairground.

But the Braves have run into this pair elsewhere, and it was Bulmon who robbed them of an 11-inning battle at Fostoria Saturday night when he called a Red Bird runner safe at second on a force play before the runner even started his slide. From all reports, the runner was out by four feet, and the game would have gone into the 12th inning as a scoreless tie. There were two out and a man scored from third on the play.

GRIDDERS SIGN

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Jim Strausbaugh of Chillicothe and Lenny Thom of Sandusky, both former Ohio State university football players, have signed contracts with the Columbus Bulls of the American Professional Football league for the coming season. Strausbaugh is a back and Thom a guard and a tackle.

Cleveland Fans Drop Flag Hopes

Tribe Starts Eastern Trip Seven Games Behind.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Indians packed their bags today for another eastern invasion and the fans packed their pennant hopes away for another year.

Getting only an even break in a doubleheader with the last-place Senators yesterday, the Redskins dropped seven games behind New York. Al Milnar lost the opener, 8 to 4, for his 12th defeat of the season while Jim Bagby notched his seventh triumph in winning the nightcap, 5 to 1.

Unless the Tribe overcomes the seaboard jinx that annually strikes in July and August, the coming 12-game jaunt may completely blackout its dimming flag chances.

The team will entrain tonight for New York where Bob Feller is scheduled to face the Yankees tomorrow in the opener of a three-game stand. Three contests also are slated in Boston, Washington and Philadelphia.

Steve Sundra, former Cleveland sandlotter, limited the Indians to seven hits in the Washington victory while his mates pounded Milnar freely.

Al finally retired in the fifth with Clint Brown and Harry Eisenstat finishing.

Ken Keltner got his 16th home run of the season and Jeff Heath poled a triple to highlight what there was of a Cleveland attack.

Bagby hurled eight-hit ball to best Vern Kennedy in a pitching duel that was turned into a rout by four Washington errors Larry Rosenthal's homer and Heath's double and two singles paced Cleveland's seven-hit offensive.

* * *

The St. Louis Cardinals are on their way back west today to open a long home stand against the eastern clubs, and there is a good chance they will take complete charge of the National League race before they are again routed out of Sportsman's park.

They left that impression as they completed a smashing tour of the seaboard with a double defeat of the Boston Braves yesterday by scores of 4 to 2 and 7 to 3 That made it seven victories in their past nine games

Brooklyn, by doing no better than breaking even against Pittsburgh yesterday, saw its lead sliced to a game and a half, with a long road trip ahead.

Whit Wyatt, the team's ace, lost his third straight start when the Pirates beat him, 5 to 1, in the nightcap. Fred Fitzsimmons, reliable veteran, was struck on the arm by a batted ball and forced to retire early in the first tilt, which Curt Davis went on to win, 5 to 1.

The Cincinnati Reds, who have not yet lost hope of winning their third straight flag, climbed within two percentage points of third place by thumping the Phillies twice, 7 to 1, and 3 to 2 Paul Derringer broke a five-game losing streak in the first, in which he left 12 Phils stranded.

The New York Giants won the first from Chicago, 7 to 5 Carl Hubbell scoring his ninth victory, but the Cubs came back to take the second, 7 to 4, behind Verne Olsen

In the most spectacular game of a heavy day, the Yankees exploded for six runs in the 17th inning to win a 12 to 6 decision over Detroit at Briggs stadium. Deadlocked 6-6 at the end of nine frames they battled four hours and five minutes before the blowoff.

The hard-won victory increased the Yankees' lead to seven full games over the Cleveland Indians

The St. Louis Browns swept their second double-header in two days over Boston's diving Red Sox, 6 to 3 and 10 to 0. Veteran Ted Lyons pitched Chicago's White Sox to a 2 to 1 win in their first bout with the Philadelphia Athletics, but the A's came back to win the second, 4 to 1, in 13 innings.

Halve Double Bill With Corner Tigers

St Peter's Alumni split a double-header with the Corner Tigers yesterday at North Lake park taking the first tilt 5-3 but bowing to the Tigers 7-1 in the nightcap.

Smollen had a perfect night at bat for the Alums getting three for three in the opener as the Tigers were outhit 13 to 7. Brown of the Alums and Lesch of the Tigers both connected for circuit wallops

Miller of the Tigers connected for a four bagger in the second game as Alums found the going a little rocky getting only one hit and one run. Lesch and Harner sparked the seven hit attack as they took two out of three apiece.

WARMING-UP ACCIDENT KILLS RACING DRIVER

DAYTON—(AP)—Warming up for a benefit race for an injured race driver, Tommy Legge, 26, of Seattle, Wash., was killed on the half-mile dirt track at Dayton speedway yesterday.

Legge's wife saw his car go out of control, ride a fence and upset.

Two Ohio race drivers were injured in accidents during races at the Langhorne, Pa., speedway. Doc Amsbaugh of Miamisburg suffered a wrenched right arm in a three-car collision, and Larry Darner of Zanesville was bruised and cut in another mishap.

Ontario Takes Double Bill

Defeat Bellville Behind Dawson and Beer.

The Ontario ball club set the Bellville Merchants down in a double-header yesterday at Bellville, taking the opener 3-2, and going into an extra-frame to take a scheduled seven-inning nightcap 2-0.

Petie Beer gave up eight hits in the opener as batters on both clubs found the offering slender, no one connecting for more than one safe bingle.

Dawson pitcher shut-out ball in the second game, allowing only five hits and striking out 10 batters. Miller and Elliot led Ontaria ashwelders getting two bingles apiece. Collins and Soliday did the heavy work for the Merchants.

Wins Two In Moose League

Geiger Hurls One-Hitter; Relief Job Takes Second.

The Mansfield Moose ball club took a double-header from it's Canton brethren yesterday at Canton, in the Moose Traveling league stopping the home club 7-0 in the first and squeezing out an extra inning victory in the nightcap 4-3

Aid Geiger pitched one hit ball while Mansfield batsmen were carving nine hits out of the Canton slants in the opener

Geiger returned to the wars in the midst of a Canton rally in the seventh of the nightcap relieving B. Hauck. He fanned two in the eighth while Mansfield batters got busy and pushed over the winning run.

Mansfield garnered nine bingles in the second game while Canton took five from the combined hurling of Geiger and Hauck.

Mansfield has now won five and dropped two in the Moose Traveling league The home club will meet the Bellevue Moose at Prospect park Sunday

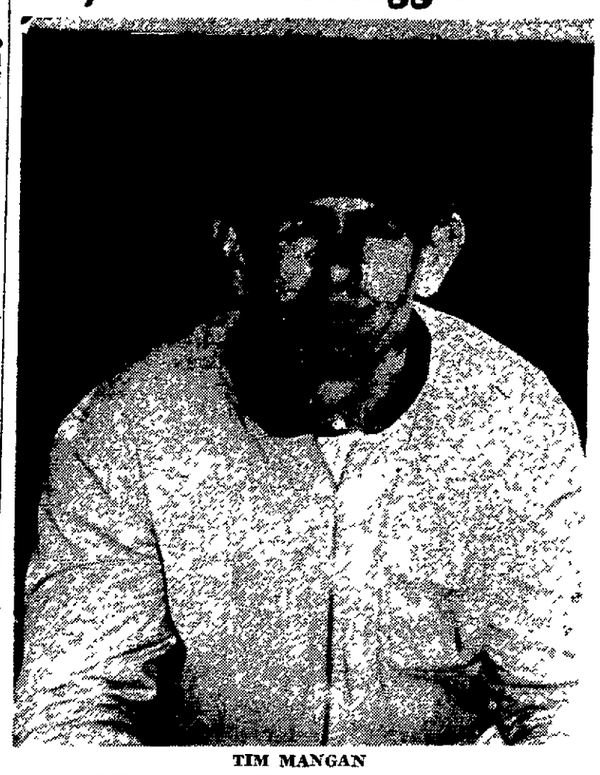
TOURNEY OPENS

YOUNGSTOWN—(AP)—Old man Par was tottering today as 100 top-ranking Ohio and Pennsylvania golfers teed off in the fourth annual $500 Poland open. The 1941 champion probably won't be decided before nightfall due to the large field and the congestion caused by a nine-hole course.

Tiny Tim Turns Slugger



TIM MANGAN

Mansfield fans just couldn't believe it when they read that Tiny Tim Mangan had belted the apple for five home runs this season, because all of Tim's potato mashing had been done away from home. But the Mighty Mite Mangan gave them first-hand evidence yesterday when he slapped one of Jack Griffore's pitches high and far over the right-center field wall at the Fairground. When the fans call him "Slugger" now, they're not kidding.

SPORTS GOSSIP

NEW YORK — (The Special News Service)—If the Cardinals win the National league pennant, Branch Rickey will insist that one of the world's series games be played at night. . . . A flip of the coin says Ray Robinson will beat Sammy Angott tonight in Philly. . . . It'll be Eddie Arcaro aboard Whirlaway in the $50,000 classic at Chicago next Saturday (if the Jockey club stewards don't set him down). . . . No confirmation yet to reports that Doc Prothro will leave the Phillies at the end of the season — if not earlier — to become president of the Memphis club. . . . Big leaguers who have batted against Satchel Paige, the Negro star, in exhibition games say he is faster than Bob Feller . . . Chicago promises the biggest gate of the season if it gets the Louis-Nova fight.

HOLLYWOOD HAPPENINGS

Forest Evashevski says he is taking twice as much punishment blasting a path for Tom Harmon in the latter's picture as he did in three years at Michigan. Tighten Grip In Flag Race

Millers Set Columbus Down In Double-Header.

(By Associated Press)

For the last two weeks Wade Killefer's Indianapolis Indians have been in a class by themselves.

Only a fortnight ago the Indians were in seventh place, but all at once they began clicking, sparked especially by 34-year-old Ray Starr's yeoman service on the mound.

Indianapolis smacked Kansas City down yesterday in both ends of a doubleheader and now is in sixth place a half game behind Toledo and four and a half games back of Kansas City in fourth.

* * *

Starr pitched and won for the Indians a week ago yesterday, worked the first two innings of the all-star game Wednesday night, won another game Thursday night and returned to the mound yesterday to pitch a six-hit, 4 to 3 decision over the Blues Bob Logan contributed a four-hitter in the nightcap for a 2 to 1 triumph.

* * *

Minneapolis regained a full game hold on first place by whipping Columbus twice, 5 to 4 and 8 to 0. Milwaukee broke an eight-game losing streak by winning over Louisville, 2 to 1, in the first half of a twin bill. The second tilt went to Louisville on a 4 to 1 decision.

* * *

Toledo and St. Paul split a twin bill. The Hens took the opener on Johnny Marcum's six-hit pitching, 4 to 1, but lost before Art Herring's five-hitter in the second game, 3 to 2.

Take Double Header From Findlay Oilers

Plenty of Heroes Found in Twin Win; Clowson Stars in Field

MANSFIELD'S battling Braves ran their home-game victory string to ten straight games yesterday by defeating the Findlay Oilers 4 to 1 and 8 to 1 at the Fairground.

Heroes there were in plenty in this double victory and the line forms on the right for a Monday morning bow: Jim Coleman, Tim Mangan, Harry Siegbert, Freddy Wolpert, Bobby TeStruth, Bill Salem and Skipper Alex Clowson.

* * *

Both Coleman and Wolpert did some great clutch hurling against Grover Hartley's lads, stocky Jim leaving nine Oilers stranded on the sacks in the 9-inning opener, and tall Freddy permitting no less than 13 of the foe to die on the paths in the 7-frame afterpiece.

Coleman allowed eight hits while holding Findlay to one run, and the Braves were garnering four runs on only five blows

But those five Mansfield hits included Tim Mangan's sixth home run of the season, and his first in the home yard, and a triple by Harry Siegbert scored two runs in the fourth inning, and left him in a position to tally the third run of the inning on an infield out

Wolpert was far from his Sunday best in the second game, giving up eight bases on balls, hitting one batter, and uncorking two wild pitches, but the Oilers didn't catch up with him until the last inning when they shoved over their lone marker.

Twice he filled the bases with two out and then proceded to retire the side. He was in hot water most of the way, but some fancy fielding, particularly by Alex Clowson, saved him.

Clowson, who replaced Eddie Mutryn in right field in the second game, had on his black mask, being guilty of robbery on two counts, and manslaughter on another.

In the second inning with two on and two out, he leaped high against the fence, cracking his head against the wall, to grab Mulcahy's long drive, and he ended the ball game with another bit of grand larceny against the same Mulcahy.

With one run in, two men on bases, and two out, Mulcahy sent a looper into right center that appeared certain to drop safely. But the Skipper, after a hard run, took a long dive for the ball, snagged it just off the grass, rolled, scrambled and somersaulted for another 20 feet, and came up with the apple.

And he nearly murdered Pitcher Matheny in the third inning with a line drive that just nicked the web of the hurler's glove, and banged against the side of his jaw, and knocked him flat on his pants. Matheny needed a five-minute rest before he was able to continue.

* * *

Harry Siegbert, moved up to the clean-up spot for the second game, crashed through with two doubles and a single, scored two runs and drove in three, while Bill Salem's triple climaxed a four-run first inning that put the game on ice.

TeStruth helped Wolpert out of a hole in the fifth when he snagged a line drive to his left by Stephenson and turned it into a double play.

And Siegbert joined the fancy fielding show with an unconscious back-handed stab of Stephenson's liner down the first base line in the first game.

Tonight the Braves go to Findlay with Chuck Byers slated for mound duty, and tomorrow night they return to the home lot to meet Tiffin.

Sunday—Fremont (two games)

COLLECT ALUMINUM

Official announcement of the participation by the Mansfield Braves in the aluminum pots and pans drive for national defense, was made during yesterday's double-header at the Fairground.

Anyone presenting one fair-sized piece of aluminum ware can see Friday night's game with Lima for 10 cents, the management announced.

It will also be ladies' night when the fair fans will be admitted for 10 cents anyhow, but the women are also asked to bring worn aluminum ware to help out in the collection of this badly needed defense material.

Washington Monument Aids Defense

STOCK MARKET SHOWS SIGNS OF RECOVERY

Business Prospects Give Argument For Bullish Forces In Trade.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Further recovery tendencies were exhibited by leading stocks in today's market. It still was largely a specialized situation and, while fractional advances ruled near the second hour, dealings were small and minus signs were seen here and there.

Business prospects continued to provide an argument for bullish forces, brokers said, and Russian claims of holding the Nazis bolstered sentiment to some extent.

Market followers scanned the survey of the magazine "Steel" which warned that more drastic curtailment of steel allotments to non-defense consumers was in the offing.

Last week, the review said, regular customers of several large mills had allocations cut as much as 50 per cent or more.

Notice was taken of the National Lumber Manufacturers' association summary disclosing another substantial upturn in activities in this field.

THEATERS

Oriental Incident.

Against an exotic background of the Far East, "They Met In Bombay," the Clark Gable-Rosalind Russelll co-starring vehicle showing at the Ohio presents the stars as a duo of opportunists plying their trade in the upper-crust of society. As an outcast British army officer Gable turns his talents to swindling, and Miss Russell provides a perfect accomplice in crime. Hong Kong offers them sanctuary after a thrilling escape from a freighter until they find themselves in the center of an international crisis. Peter Lorree, Jessie Ralph, Reginald Owen and Rosina Galli are in the cast.

Tense Thriller.

George Sanders and Walter Pidgeon stalk each other as prey in "Man Hunt," current attraction at the Madison. The chase takes them over much of Europe into one thrilling situation after another. Joan Bennett plays "the girl in the shadows." John Carradine, and Ralph McDowall are other players "Time Out For Rhythm," the swing and sway musical show with Rudy Vallee, showing as a companion picture, has Glen Gray and his Casa Loma orchestra. Ann Miller and Rosemary Lane among its top flight entertainers. Vallee plays a theatrical booking agent with a new "find."

Gay Musical.

Carmen Miranda's tempestuous personality enlivens "That Night In Rio," technicolor musical spectacle showing at the Ritz. The South American singer that created a furore in New York a season or so ago tops the cast with Alice Faye and Don Ameche in a gay comedy staged in the Brazilian capital. Ameche plays a dual role, that of a night club entertainer and impersonator, and also that of a Brazilian dignitary with Alice Faye as his wife. "Sunset In Wyoming," the co-attraction, stars Gene Autry.

TRUCKS PICK UP POTS AND PANS

Mansfield Starts Donating Old Aluminum; 2nd Ward Collection Tomorrow.

the aluminum articles, James F. Carrigan, city campaign chairman, said.

The drive will be extended to the Second ward Tuesday and to the Third ward Wednesday. Trucks will pick up the contributions Thursday in the Fourth ward, Friday in the Fifth ward, and Saturday in the Sixth ward.

Small printed notices, asking the county's rural residents to place their waste aluminum in their mailboxes Thursday morning, were distributed today to homes in rural areas, George B. Ganyard, rural chairman, said.

Trucks provided by township trustees will collect the aluminum during the day and bring it to Mansfield to go into the big bin.

Ganyard said Boy and Girl Scouts will make house-to-house calls in most of the county's villages to solicit discarded aluminum articles. The collection will start Thursday in Lexington and Shiloh and in Plymouth Friday. Lucas and Bellville began their campaigns last week.

To help the campaign along in Mansfield, the Ritz theater will accept aluminum articles as admission fees at a 10 a. m. show Thursday. Old aluminum will be good for admission to the Mansfield Braves-Lima Pandas baseball game Friday night.

Ohio Public Service company officials said lighting facilities at the collection bin at the west side of Central park will be improved during the week. The firm already has installed lights free of charge at the bin slaying, that of pretty 19-year-old Frances M. Cochran, whose body was found in a thicket off a lonely "lovers' lane"

PAIR OF BRUTAL KILLINGS PROBED

15-Year-Old Youth Charged With Murder in East, Second Sadist Slayer Sought.

In Woburn district court, Woodward burst into tears when he was held without bail for hearing July 31.

Two Salem policemen, searching for clues, found a young man asleep in an automobile parked in the woods less than a quarter mile from the lane where the Cochran girl's body was found Authorities began questioning him

The brown-haired employe of a leather factory, missing since Thursday night, had been strangled to death, Medical Examiner Ignatius Zielinski said

The Shipp girl's body was found in the Baptist church parsonage, where young Woodward was employed as a caretaker.

The Shipp girl, a high school junior, had disappeared four days earlier after making purchases at a store for her mother. The parsonage was closed, the Baptist minister and his family being away on vacation.

A high school class ring and a topaz ring, still on the fingers, helped Lynn Police Sgt. J. Henry Wall identify Miss Cochran's severely battered body. The forehead was gashed. A broken tree branch had been thrust into her mouth, apparently as a gag.

Wall said the girl disappeared after leaving her house to go to a dance in Lynn, and Lynn Police Chief Edward B. Callahan subsequently ordered a lookout for an old model automobile which a neighbor reported having seen Miss Cochran enter.
